

Employment:

- 2009-present Professor of Journalism (tenured), American University School of Communication, Washington, D.C.
- 2008-present Founding Executive Editor, Investigative Reporting Workshop (IRW), a research center within the American University School of Communication (AU SOC), Washington, D.C.

Proposed the idea in October 2007 and approved by the University in March 2008.

The award-winning Investigative Reporting Workshop in its first decade of publication reported and published dozens of major investigative reporting projects and more than two hundred news stories, co-published with at over 30 media partners, including the PBS program FRONTLINE, The Washington Post and WAMU.

To date, the IRW has co-produced 14 FRONTLINE documentary programs, and one documentary that was part of an Emmy Award-winning 10-hour series that aired on Showtime. Workshop researchers also helped to bring two books to fruition: The Betrayal of the American Dream by Donald L. Barlett and James B. Steele (PublicAffairs; 2012), a New York Times bestseller; and 935 Lies: The Future of Truth and the Decline of America's Moral Integrity by Charles Lewis (PublicAffairs; 2014).

IRW has hired more than 15 experienced reporters, editors and freelancers to work with the IRW editors and students. Workshop internships, fellowships and post-graduate fellowships have resulted in the hiring of more than 170 students from AU and other universities.

Since its inception in mid-2008, the Workshop has raised/received $17,698,277 from grants, donations and earned revenue. It is the largest research center within the American University School of Communication, one of the largest at AU and the only one of its reportorial ilk within the Washington D.C. metropolitan area's 13 colleges and universities.

Multimedia Production:

Investigating Power (www.InvestigatingPower.org). Founder / Executive Producer, conceived this five-year, $500,000 philanthropically funded, multimedia, oral history online presentation co-sponsored by the Investigative Reporting Workshop, the Center for Public Integrity and the Fund for Independence in Journalism. Presented at the National Press Club in Washington. Interviewed by Robert Siegel of NPR’s All Things Considered, the project honors independent journalism in America, with career timelines, 53 produced video excerpts and significant “truth to power” moments in contemporary U.S. history dating back to 1950, with still photos and archival video footage. Interviewed 27 important national journalists on high definition video and oversaw the production team of 22 people - producers, editors, researchers, web designers, etc. This is an ongoing project, deepening in textual and video content over the years, hopefully including a total of at least 40 national journalist interviews. This is the only website in the United States documenting the careers and historic impact of notable journalists during critical “moments of truth” in recent U.S. history, including online historic timelines, recommended readings, and these ongoing oral history video interviews and excerpts.
